Art Unit: 3753

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

Specifically, the description fails to properly identify the operation of the invention as shown in the drawings of the instant application. For example, at pages 11-13 in the description of the operation of the device illustrated in the drawings, disclosure referring to the valve piston "raising" or moving "upward", is not commensurate with the drawings in that, given the horizontal layout of the device in the drawings, the valve piston does not "raise" (absent a clarifying description concerning direction being relative to the final assembled location of the device). Further, disclosure of the operation including movement of fluid "into enclosed chamber 33" upon opening movement of the valve from the drawing appears impossible as well as "decreasing the volume of chamber 28" upon initial rapid movement.

It is respectfully suggested that the description be thoroughly reviewed for agreement with the device of the drawings as opposed to the device of U.S. Pat. No. 5,715,861 from which it appears an exact copy of portions of the instant description were made. For example, upon a cursory review it is clear that column 3, lines 28- 65 were copied, verbatim, and used in the instant application description. This would normally be acceptable. However, as all of the numbers used by applicant do not coincide with the numbers and elements used in 5,715,861, the descriptions do not match and the description of the operation of the instant application is not understandable from reading the current version of the description.

Care should be exercised to prevent the introduction of new matter. Should the number and nature of amendments needed be extensive, a substitute specification, under 37 CFR 1.125 may be filed.

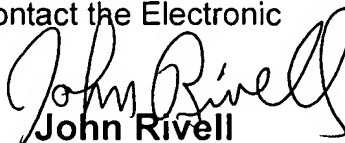

Claims 1-15 are allowed over the prior art of record. However, the specification appears to require changes as noted above.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to John Rivell whose telephone number is (571) 272-4918. The examiner can normally be reached on Mon.-Thur. from 6:30am-5:00pm.
